Thanks Julia!

Joanna, I know we talked about this a few weeks ago – I'd love to get some greater clarity on what is/is not approved. I sent you an email a week or so ago – could we make plans to connect once the strike is over?

Thanks,
~ Liz

Thanks Julia, really appreciate the guidance!

To clarify – and you may or may not have the answer to this question – do all psych interns have to go through DPS? We do have a qualified school psychologist at one of our schools who has connected with an intern who would like to work directly with him next year. We do not plan to open up multiple internships but if this one off situations works out, I just want to make sure we're covered and not going against any protocol.

Thanks!

Hi Liz, how are you doing?

This link will take you to a document that has information about school psychology internship timelines for this year as well as links to a guidance document about school psychology internships and the matrix:

https://docs.google.com/document/d/1t4WE8YMJTGcN-PmANh9_SU0AQ368cKmg33h4EFkD750/edit?usp=sharing

We do not have this level of coordination and involvement for school social work interns because they have shorter internships that occur throughout the year and they have more flexibility around what types of settings they can use as field experience. Let me know if you have questions,

Julia

Hi Julia,

I hope you're doing well! I wanted to connect and get some more information about school psychologist interns. I know that DPS has options for psych and social worker interns and we have worked with them in the past. Recently, we've had a few individuals and schools approach us directly looking for internship opportunities. I know there are greater requirements for school psychologists than social workers and I was hoping you could provide greater guidance on qualifications etc.

Thanks,
~ Liz
